ABSTRACT

Presented is a list of textbooks officially adopted for use in Oregon public schools for the period 1971-1977 in business education, driver education, foreign languages, health, mathematics, and science. Section I provides suggestions to school administrators on textbook selection. Topics discussed include selecting a variety of partial sets of texts, negotiating with publishers, utilizing older texts, interpreting price lists, and encouraging autonomy for local selection practices. Discussion of the procedure for seeking approval of independent textbook adoptions is followed by instruction on how to review challenged instructional material and a sample form requesting reconsideration of instructional materials. The bulk of the report (presented in Sections II, III, and IV) lists textbooks by grade level and by specific subject area within the fields of business education, driver education, foreign languages, health, mathematics, and science. Each entry lists title, grade, subject, author, copyright, publisher, and wholesale and retail price information. Additional information such as availability and cost of a teacher's edition or guide is provided where applicable. A directory of textbook representatives for all materials in the circular is included. (Author/HM)

SUGGESTIONS TO SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS

1. The adoption of a multiple choice of textbooks by the State Textbook Commission makes it possible for local districts to use more than one, or all, of the adopted textbooks in the subject matter areas where advisable. It also gives the local district the right to choose but one textbook from a number of approved textbooks if a single textbook is desired in a subject matter area.

2. In most subject areas the use of a variety of textbooks frequently provides a more challenging learning situation than the use of a single textbook. Many teachers make better use of three or four partial sets of textbooks than of a single text. A set may be six or more books depending upon the number of children in the working groups. In some instances, it may be desirable to purchase books in quantities smaller than class sets for use as references. In such cases, the number of basic textbooks purchased should still equal one per child.

3. Adoptions are made only for basic classroom materials that constitute the nucleus of the classroom instruction. Local school districts are encouraged to use any materials they choose to supplement or enrich the basic program and to individualize instruction in meeting the varying abilities of children more effectively.

4. Contracts are not negotiated with publishers for supplementary materials; hence, prices are not guaranteed on those items and they are listed as "optional purchase." Administrators' attention is called to the offers by publishers to furnish teachers' editions without charge when classroom quantities of the pupils' editions are ordered. When ordering for a district, the total number of texts to be purchased at a given grade and subject area for individual schools may be totaled to determine the number of teachers' editions the whole district is entitled to. There may be some advantage in such totaling ratner than ordering individually by building.

5. It is strongly recommended that a textbook in each subject or phase of a subject taught shall be available to each child. If necessary for budgetary reasons, new textbook purchases may be spread over a period of two years, thus reducing to approximately one-half the amount expended each year.

In those cases where a text is readopted and the newly adopted edition constitutes merely a change of copyright date and/or design and illustrations with no significant change of content, usable older copyright books already on hand in the district may continue to be used until they can conveniently be replaced by the newer editions without causing unnecessary financial burden to the district.

6. The wholesale at depository price listed in this circular is the price of books obtained from the Northwest Textbook Depository Company, 17970 SW Lower Boones Ferry Road, Portland, Oregon 97223 (or P. O. Box 3708, Portland), the textbook depository in Oregon designated by the State Board of Education. The price is usually computed at 25 percent off the retail price.

7. The wholesale at publisher price listed in this circular is the price of a textbook purchased f.o.b. publisher's main or regional office. Generally, those publishers maintaining a West Coast regional office have listed this price as 25 percent of the retail price, f.o.b. the West Coast office. Publishers without West Coast offices generally have computed the price f.o.b. a Mid-West or East Coast office at 25 percent off the retail price.

Local Selection Practices

Each local school district has complete and autonomous authority to select any of the textbooks from the multiple list. The following suggestions for the selection of textbooks by local school districts from the Oregon multiple list were developed by a committee representing district superintendents, secondary and elementary principals, supervisors bookmen, the State Textbook Commission, and the Oregon Board of Education. It is hoped that use of these suggestions by local administrators will help in selection of books from the state-adopted multiple list.

1. Textbook selection in the larger districts should be made under the supervision of the administrative head or supervisory staff of the district with maximum teacher participation.

2. Intermediate education district superintendents should provide the guidance necessary for selecting textbooks in smaller districts. Examination copies of textbooks on the multiple list can be made available at county offices. No legal provision is made for county textbook adoptions. Therefore, any county-wide selection is advisory only. The final selection from the multiple list rests with the local board.

3. Textbook selection committees in local districts should be small. Usually a given committee should be assigned to evaluate books in only one area of the curriculum.

4. To allow for ample evaluation time, the period for textbook study should be flexible and held open until committee members have had the opportunity to study all books on the multiple list and interview or hear presentations by textbook representatives when that is a part of the local evaluation procedure.

5. The administrator in each district should inform publishers' representatives as to adoption procedures for his district. Then the administrator and the textbook company representatives concerned should make arrangements as to the most convenient time and date for committee or individual teacher interviews. The names and addresses of representatives are included in this publication.

6. Final decisions as to the books to be selected from the multiple list should be made after committees have studied all aspects of the publishers' programs. Where accompanying teacher guides, workbooks, tests, or other helps are available, they should be examined along with the texts they accompany. They often give a clear clue to the philosophy and method of teaching envisaged by the authors and editors.

7. Use of the combined judgment of responsible teachers cannot be too strongly emphasized in selecting textbooks. Checklists and rating scales may be of value in indicating points to look for when examining books, but quantitative measures cannot substitute for subjective judgments of teachers who have made detailed studies of textbooks.

8. Local districts should develop policy and procedures* for handling appeals by patrons requesting the district's reconsideration of instructional materials used in the classroom. A form for requesting such reconsideration should be available for use of complainants. Concerns regarding complaints about instructional materials, including state-adopted materials, should be handled by the local district according to these duly established local procedures. Patrons may examine materials in use in local classrooms at the local district office. In many cases the county intermediate education office will maintain a collection of the state-adopted materials. A copy of each state-adopted text is on file at the State Textbook Commission office in Salem and may be examined there.

* See sample procedure and sample form, following.

PROCEDURE FOR SEEKING APPROVAL
INDEPENDENT TEXTBOOK ADOPTIONS

Authority for seeking independent local adoptions by local school boards (with the exception of those districts with 20,000 or more census-age children--ages 5-19 inclusive--who may make their own adoptions) is established in ORS 337.141. School districts desirous of adopting a textbook for basal use, independent of or in addition to those officially adopted by the State Textbook Commission, are to follow the procedures set forth below:

In general, an independent adoption will not be approved within a period of one year from the beginning of the regular textbook adoption period.

The administrative head of the district must submit to the State Board of Education prior to placing the textbooks in use in the local schools a written application approved by the local school board, including the following data:

1. Specific needs identified by the local school which in the judgment of the local school cannot be met by state-adopted textbooks.

2. Identification of textbooks for which approval is being sought by name, author, publisher, and edition or copyright date.

3. A course of study containing the following information:

   a. Objectives to be achieved
   b. Learning activities to be utilized
   c. Instructional materials to be used
   d. Means of evaluation to be employed to determine achievement of objectives
   e. Content outline
   f. Teacher-administrator committees and consultants who participated in preparation of the course of study

4. Evidence of teacher-administrator participation in evaluation of appropriate textbooks, including state-adopted and nonstate-adopted textbooks, prior to selecting those thought to be best in meeting the needs of the local district.

5. Evidence that the textbooks selected will meet the particular needs of the local school.

School administrators are encouraged to avail themselves of the personnel resources of the Oregon Board of Education, State System of Higher Education, other educational institutions, agencies, and textbook companies to aid local personnel in thinking through and preparing the required course of study.

Approval of local adoptions, normally, will be given only until the end of the current state adoption period of the subject submitted.

It is to the advantage of districts making independent adoptions to comply with the provisions of the law and school standards.

Application for approval of independent adoptions and resolutions of boards of education should be sent to Director of General Education, Oregon Board of Education, 542 Lancaster Drive, NE, Salem, Oregon 97310, before the books are placed in use in the local schools.

(SAMPLE) PROCEDURE FOR REVIEW OF CHALLENGED INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS

(NOTE: Following is an excerpt from the procedure for review of challenged instructional materials used by one Oregon local school district and a copy of the form used to request reconsideration of such materials. These are included in this circular as informational items only.)

This procedure recognizes the right of staff and patrons to request a review of materials. The intent of the procedure is to provide a fair and orderly basis for considering criticisms, complaints, requests for banning, and challenges of instructional materials. In this procedural statement all such allegations are referred to as "challenges."

A district Instructional Materials Review Committee shall be appointed by the superintendent of schools. The Review Committee shall consist of seven members: the department chairmen of the English, science, and social science departments, an administrator, the audiovisual coordinator, the library coordinator, and a librarian. One of the Review Committee shall be designated as secretary to the committee. The procedures for processing challenges are as follows:

1. All challenges shall be in writing on the form prepared for this purpose.

2. The written challenge shall be collected by the superintendent of schools. The person submitting the challenge may withdraw the request at any time; thereby negating the necessity of further action.

3. Classroom sets of materials or basic textbook adoptions shall remain in use until the Board of Education approves a recommendation by the Review Committee that the item be removed from use. The superintendent may withdraw instructional materials from circulation until such time as the particular issue has been resolved.

4. The superintendent shall activate the Review Committee and request consideration of the challenge.

5. The Review Committee shall consider the challenge and make a recommendation to the superintendent as to the action to be taken in regard to the material. The Review Committee may call consultants to review materials in particular subject areas.

6. The superintendent shall present the recommendation of the Review Committee to the Board of Education for final consideration.

Adoption Period 1971-77

ELEMENTARY SCIENCE, Grades 1-8

NOTE: Partial sets of several state-adopted texts may be used for science instruction in grades 1-8, rather than a single set of one text per grade, but an equivalent number of books must be provided.

In addition to the following 7th and 8th grade science texts, schools may select from the 7th and 8th grade junior high school science texts.
